

Assignment 3

Bank UML:

We can see that at the top we have the user(s) and the steps it takes to become a user. The two account types are listed with their respective classes listed, with both being the same with an extra class for the checking account.

Shopping Cart UML:

We can see in this design that our shopping cart is partitioned into three classes, all of which include the same values with the exception of the specialty classes for the publication and the food sections respectively.
